An innovative, touchless, discrete feminine hygiene disposal system designed to reduce cross-infection risks from blood waste and provide a hygienic and pleasant washroom experience.

Why Be Concerned About Sanitary Waste?

Blood Borne Pathogens

Sanitary napkins and tampons contain blood waste which carry the risk of blood borne diseases and can present significant health concerns.

Infectious Bacteria

Bacteria found in sanitary waste multiply exponentially to infectious dose levels that can cause a number of serious illnesses such as Gastroenteritis and Staph and infections such as Impetigo and MRSA.

Cross-Infection Risks

Improper disposal methods such as garbage cans and wall boxes can heighten infection risks and can often be a major contributor of washroom plumbing issues.
